Roberti Converti is an Argentine architect devoted to developing strategic proposals and projects for cities, through the design and management of urban projects and large-scale architecture. His current professional work adds up to a continuous series of intellectual experiences in universities and academic institutions, city-planning activity in public management and his permanent dedication, in his professional studio, to investigating and generating ideas in the sphere of city-planning and architecture, circumstances that have allowed him to delineate a life process committed to the social and political complexity and to giving impetus to innovative and transformative projects wherever he is called upon to intervene.
